22. Which of the following statements comes closer to your own point of view, even if neither is exactly right?

The Republican candidate says: "To make communities safe, people who break the law must be held accountable. This means seeing the harm they've done, accepting the consequences, learning from mistakes, and changing their behavior. Harsh punishment and long sentences alone lead to more violence. We need to provide people with programs that work to turn their lives around and prevent future crime." 56%

The Democratic candidate says: "We need to make sure that people who break the law are held accountable by enforcing strict punishment. If you do the crime, you should do the time, and that means serving the full sentence. Offenders shouldn't be able to get out of jail or prison early simply because they complete programs or have a good track record behind bars." 44%

The Republican candidate says: "The Left has allowed a culture built on hating the police to drive decisions surrounding law enforcement. The Defund the Police movement is without a doubt one of the greatest dangers to public safety in our nation's history, and Democrats are responsible for it. The hostile climate for police has discouraged proactive police work. We can't expect the police to keep us safe if we aren't willing to keep them safe." 49%

The Democratic candidate says: "I'm not about scare tactics or slogans, and I'm not afraid to have an honest conversation. We keep expecting police to solve every social problem—from addiction to mental illness to homelessness and gun violence. No one profession can do all of that. We should let police focus on serious crime and invest in other proven solutions that prevent crime and break its cycle. It's time for support and change, not blame." 51%

The Democratic candidate says: "I am not for defunding the police. The police play an important role and I will work with them to make our neighborhoods safer. But we can't ask the police to do everything and take their focus away from solving serious crime. I will also invest in mental health crisis response, community violence prevention, and programs that prevent crime and break and its cycle. Open drug use, weapons, housing encampments, and trash litter our streets while rogue district attorneys and "progressive prosecutors" refuse to enforce the law. We need to keep repeat offenders where they belong, which is behind bars. Protect Texans. Prosecute criminals." 46%

The Democratic candidate says: "People in mental health crisis or struggling with addiction need treatment, not jail time. By sending a trained crisis specialist instead of police to respond to nonviolent situations, we can break the cycle of arrest and connect people in crisis to the services they need to prevent future crime." 54%

We need to confront this crisis head-on by cracking down on drug dealers, shutting down trafficking networks, and imposing tough prison sentences for criminals fueling Texas's opioid epidemic. Republicans are working to hold perpetrators and traffickers accountable to the fullest extent of the law." 54%

The Democratic candidate says: "The opioid and fentanyl crisis is connected to the same problems families are dealing with every day – the high cost of housing, rising prices, and a mental health system that's failed too many people. If the person cannot afford the amount, they remain in jail until their case is decided. If the person can afford it, they are released to await trial at home rather than in jail. Which of the following statements comes closer to your own point of view, even if neither is exactly right?

We need to maintain strong bail laws to keep dangerous people in jail. Cashless-bail policies let dangerous and repeat offenders walk free and make communities less safe. 40%

Vera Action TX Bail Project

Vera Action TX Bail Project Toplines

This survey is based on 800 interviews conducted by YouGov on the internet of Texas registered voters. The sample was weighted according to gender, age, race/ethnicity, education, and Texas region based on voter registration lists, the U.S. Census American Community Survey, and the U.S. Census Current Population Survey, as well as 2020 Presidential vote and approximate 2024 Presidential vote based on available results, and party identification estimates based on Pew Research Center's National Public Opinion Reference Survey. Respondents were selected from YouGov to be representative of registered voters. The weights range from 0.11 to 6.01 with a mean of 1 and a standard deviation of 0.73.

The margin of error (a 95% confidence interval) for a sample percentage p based upon the subsetting sample is approximately 4.3%. It is calculated using the formula:

$$\hat{p} \pm 100 \times \sqrt{\frac{1 + CV^2}{n}}$$

where CV is the coefficient of variation of the sample weights and n is the sample size used to compute the proportion. This is a measure of sampling error (the average of all estimates obtained using the same sample selection and weighting procedures repeatedly). The sample estimate should differ from its expected value by less than margin of error in 95 percent of all samples. It does not reflect non-sampling errors, including potential selection bias in panel participation or in response to a particular survey.
